Deep in Love tells the story of two families bound by pride, two souls torn apart by destiny, and one sea that never forgets.

Along the untamed shores of the Black Sea, the Koçari and Furtuna families have lived in conflict for generations. Their feud began with a forbidden love that ended in tragedy, and its echoes still shape every life that follows.

Adil Koçari is the proud son of the mountains, strong, passionate, and loyal to his name. Esme Furtuna is the brave daughter of the sea, free in spirit and unafraid to challenge the world around her. When they meet as teenagers, their love burns brighter than the hatred between their families. Yet fate is cruel. Betrayal and deceit tear them apart, and the child Esme carries is taken from her before she can even hold it.

Years later, Adil has become a powerful man known throughout the region for his success and his temper. Esme, now a widow, runs a quiet guesthouse by the sea, her life defined by strength and silence. Neither knows that the child they lost survived. Eleni Miryano has grown up in Greece, raised by a loving family but haunted by questions she cannot answer. A young doctor driven by compassion, she travels to the Black Sea to begin a new chapter. When she saves Adil's life after a tragic accident, a bond forms between them, unaware that blood and destiny already unite them. As old wounds open and long-buried truths emerge, love, vengeance, and forgiveness become intertwined. In a land where the sea has witnessed every secret, only truth can calm its waves.

ADIL KOÇARI

ULAŞ TUNA ASTEPE

The fierce leader of the misty Koçari Mountains. A man of sharp instincts, impossible courage, and dangerous charm. Strategic yet impulsive, ruthless yet loyal, Adil lives by his own laws. To his loved ones, he is merciful; to his enemies, merciless. The rules of men do not bind him; he writes his own. Pragmatic to the core, he acts with precision, always two steps ahead. He's the fire beneath the mountain, calm on the surface, erupting without warning. Every movement, every word is deliberate. His strength radiates quiet authority; his gaze alone can command a room. A survivor of loss and betrayal, he rebuilt himself from ashes to become the unchallenged ruler of the northern highlands. But beneath the steel lies the same burning heart that once belonged to a seventeen-year-old boy who loved a girl named Esme and never truly stopped.

ESMIE FURTUNA

DENİZ BAYSAL

The proud matriarch of the raging Black Sea. Once a wild-hearted dreamer, Esme has become the formidable head of Furtuna, a woman forged in pain and defiance. Strong, resilient, and unyielding, she carries her scars like medals. Her laughter is rare, her words sharp as the northern wind. She commands her village with instinct and integrity, her authority born not of title but of fire. Beneath her stern exterior, however, lives a heart that has never stopped mourning her lost child, her lost love, her lost self. In another life, she could have been a poet, a singer of the sea. Now, she is both mother and warrior, torn between the woman she was and the woman the world forced her to become. For all her pride, she is still the storm that bears her name, fierce, beautiful, and forever restless.

ELENI MIRYANO

AVA YAMAN

A brilliant young doctor from Greece, fragile in appearance, fierce in spirit. At only twenty, Eleni possesses the mind of a scientist and the heart of a poet. Guided by reason yet ruled by emotion, she seeks to heal not only others but also her own invisible wounds. Her beauty is quiet and timeless, her presence luminous in its gentleness. Behind her calm smile hides a deep yearning for belonging, for love, for a past she doesn't remember. When she discovers the truth about her origins, she finds herself caught between two worlds, two families, and two faiths.

ORUÇ FURTUNA

BURAK YÖRÜK

The reckless heir of the Furtuna clan. At once a skilled doctor and a devout believer, Oruç lives in constant conflict between faith and desire, duty and freedom. In his soul, a butcher wrestles with a monk, a man torn between instinct and conscience. Raised amid blood feuds and sacred oaths, he fights to reconcile his fierce Black Sea temper with his spiritual devotion. His heart is a battlefield where passion collides with prayer, rebellion with redemption. He is both sinner and believer, lover and fugitive, warrior and healer. And though he carries the storm within him, he dreams perhaps foolishly of peace.
